New Discoveries

Long before the Ames family ever built the mansion we call Donahue Hall, there stood a small homestead on the property now occupied by the College. Inhabited by the Dailey family in the 18th century, the homestead had long ago tumbled to the ground. A piece of history lost.

This past summer, however, three students and a professor made it their mission to uncover the Dailey home. Participants in the Summer Undergraduate Research Experience, they spent eight weeks in a wooded area behind Rhododendron Drive, conducting the archeological excavation of the site. The artifacts that they discovered, which grace the cover of this magazine, give us a glimpse into the life of the Dailey family and, indeed, daily living in 18th century Easton. Turn to page 8 to learn more about this exciting project and what it tells us about the history in our own backyard.

While 18th century life in the U.S. was difficult by today’s standards, David Pomfret ’59 has discovered that, in 20th century Africa, life is still a struggle with most people living without running water, electricity, phones, paved roads or needed medical services.

He and his wife Anna have volunteered as missionary doctors in Tanzania since 1996. Through a series of monthly emails to friends and family, Pomfret provides a glimpse into modern-day life in Tanzania. With over 40 percent of their patients suffering from AIDS, it is at times shocking. His heartening stories of how the Tanzanian people maintain dignity and grace in the face of tragedy is humbling. Excerpts from his account begin on page 12.

Readers will notice a new addition to this issue. We have incorporated the Annual Report of Gifts into SAM. While saving money for the College -- and thereby making your contributions work harder -- this allows us to send the report to all alumni, parents and friends. We hope you enjoy this new format.

Best wishes for a joyous holiday season.

Bartley MacPháidín, C.S.C. to Step Down
After 22 years in the position, Stonehill President Bartley MacPháidín, C.S.C. recently announced his intention to step down as president of the College in June 2000.

Digging up the Past
By Sandra Howe
This past summer, three Stonehill students and their professor spent eight weeks deep in the woods of the Stonehill campus. There, they conducted an archeological study of the John Dailey Homestead, an 18th century dwelling holding a wealth of information about colonial times in this area.

Dispatches from Kilimanjaro

Special center insert: Annual Report of Gifts
We're #1

The College was ranked first among U.S. News & World Report's top regional liberal arts colleges in the North. Stonehill tied Susquehanna University in Penn. for the top position.

"We are delighted at being ranked number one and salute our co-winner Susquehanna University," said Stonehill President Bartley MacPhaidin, C.S.C.

Since 1996, the College has placed second in the regional liberal arts category in the North. This is the first year Stonehill has captured the number one position, with a score of 100.

U.S. News ranked over 1,400 colleges and universities based on academic reputation, freshman retention, graduation rate, class size, student/faculty ratio, percentage of full-time faculty, student selectivity, acceptance rate and alumni giving rates. Other regional colleges ranked among the best in the North include: Elizabethtown College, Penn. (third); St. Anselm College, N.H. (fourth); and Le Moyne College, N.Y. (fifth).

"I congratulate Stonehill's faculty and staff whose hard work and commitment to our educational mission have made this recognition possible," Fr. MacPhaidin continued. "I also congratulate our alumni whose loyalty played a role in this honor and I cannot forget our increasingly talented students whose desire to learn motivates us. Getting to the number one spot is a great way to conclude the College's 50th anniversary and an inspiring start to the new millennium."

Among the individual criteria used by U.S. News, Stonehill ranked first in graduation rate and second in freshman retention rate and academic reputation.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Bravo!

Just a quick note to let you know that I thought the Spring 1999 Stonehill Alumni Magazine was excellently done. I am not quite sure what it was about this issue, but it had a good look and feel. It made me want to read it. Bravo!

An era in Stonehill history will conclude in June when Fr. Bartley MacPhaidin, C.S.C. steps down as the College's eighth and longest-serving president. In office for 22 years, MacPhaidin, 63, has transformed Stonehill, strengthening the College's academic profile, enhancing its name recognition, improving campus facilities and increasing the endowment 26-fold.

"Stonehill has been blessed with Fr. Bart's stewardship. The College today is stronger because of his leadership and everyone who loves Stonehill is indebted to him for his vision, which has inspired us all, and for his remarkable accomplishments," said Thomas Shields, chairman of the Board of Trustees.

Having achieved many of the goals that he set for himself when he became president in 1978, Fr. MacPhaidin feels that it is time for the College to establish a new set of challenges and to pave the way for younger, more energetic leadership.

Reflecting on his years as president, Fr. MacPhaidin, the first alumnus to serve as president, said, "I have been privileged to represent Stonehill at the highest level and I am proud of what we have accomplished together. As president, I have enjoyed a productive tenure, but the College's present stature stems from the combined efforts of our entire community. And, I am grateful for the wonderful support I have received from all sections of the Stonehill family."

Fr. MacPhaidin, who taught in the Religious Studies Department before becoming president, is looking forward to a sabbatical of professional renewal during which time he will write, catch up on reading and travel. He is also excited about the new position of President Emeritus at Stonehill, which he will assume after his sabbatical.

"I thrive on challenge and the Emeritus position is an exciting one. But before then, I want to help ensure a smooth leadership transition for the College. Great institutions are defined by their ability to manage change and I want my successor to inherit a college in excellent shape," Fr. MacPhaidin said.

A search is underway, among the 1,700 members of the Congregation of Holy Cross, for Stonehill's ninth president. The Board of Trustees plans to have a new president in place by the start of the 2000-2001 academic year.

As president, Fr. MacPhaidin (pictured above in 1977) has affected every facet of Stonehill life, including academics, finances, physical plant, community involvement, student life and public image. During his tenure, Fr. MacPhaidin:

- Expanded the College's reputation for academic excellence and enhanced Stonehill's name recognition. In August, U.S. News & World Report ranked Stonehill first among regional liberal arts colleges in the North.
- Oversaw the construction of many new buildings and facilities, including: the Bartley MacPhaidin C.S.C. Library; the Sally Blair Ames Sports Complex; the Joseph W. Martin Jr. Institute for Law and Society; John W. Stanger Hall (Lockary Computer Center); Roche Dining Commons; Merkert-Tracy Science Center, and numerous student residence halls.
- Oversaw the renovation of Alumni Hall, the Merkert-Tracy Science Center, Commonwealth and Colonial Courts and Cardinal O'Hara Hall, the necessary wiring of the College for the computer age and the maintenance of the campus in pristine condition.
- Helped the College establish a secure fiscal base and led Stonehill in its first Capital Campaign, raising over $22 million. At present, the College's endowment is $80 million, up from $3 million in 1978. In every year of his tenure, Stonehill has operated with a balanced budget.
- Built strong relations with Stonehill's neighbors, cultivated a dynamic and loyal Board of Trustees, and helped to attract more and better qualified student applicants.

Academic Convocation was well-attended this year, with Rev. Ray Hammond, MD, and Robert Wilkinson '52 addressing the audience. Both men were presented with the President's Medal for their outstanding contributions to public life. Hammond is founder and pastor of Bethel African Methodist Episcopal Church in Boston and Wilkinson is a professor of English at Villanova University. Joy Errico '00 also delivered a speech to welcome the Class of '03.

Stonehill Honors Brockton Interfaith Community

The Brockton Interfaith Community (BIC) received the 1999 Joseph W. Martin Jr. Public Service Award from Stonehill in June for its service to southeastern Massachusetts.

The BIC is a coalition of 19 religious congregations rooted in faith values and working to make concrete improvements in the lives of families, congregations, and the city of Brockton. Major accomplishments of the BIC include new affordable home ownership and neighborhood revitalization, youth initiatives, health care, and crime prevention.

Since 1992, the award has been given annually to perpetuate the memory of the distinguished public servant, Rep. Joseph W. Martin Jr., and to recognize exceptional public service achievement.
Family Institute Established at Stonehill

In September, the Congregation of Holy Cross broke ground for a new facility on campus. Adjacent to Holy Cross Center, the new facility will be home to two Holy Cross ministries - Family Rosary and the Fr. Patrick Peyton, C.S.C. Family Institute.

A worldwide prayer ministry, Family Rosary was founded in 1942 by Fr. Peyton, the famous rosary priest who died in 1992. Long-based in Albany, N.Y., Family Rosary will move its headquarters to Stonehill by August 2000. At the same time, Family Rosary has established the Fr. Peyton, C.S.C. Family Institute, which will be based in the new facility at Stonehill.

Fr. Peyton is buried in Holy Cross cemetery on campus. His gravestone is always covered with rosary beads (see photo) left by those who visit the site. He coined the phrase, “The family that prays together ... stays together.” Family Rosary fosters family prayer and spirituality through the collection and distribution of rosaries worldwide as well as through family-centered products, activities, youth concerts, spiritual reading material, parish missions, and multimedia programs.

The Family Institute at Stonehill will play an important role in family life ministry now and into the millennium. The arrival of Family Rosary also marks the return of alumnus and former trustee, Fr. John Phelan, C.S.C. '70, as the organization's president. For more information, see the Institute's web-site at www.peytonfamilyinstitute.org/peyton.

Stonehill Walks for Breast Cancer

This fall, 68 members of the Stonehill community participated in the Making Strides for Breast Cancer Walk, raising $3,623. Last year Stonehill participants raised $1,800. The annual walk was 5.7 miles in Boston beginning and ending at the Hatch Shell. In all, about 32,000 participants walked and raised $2.9 million.

Plaque Dedicated in Donahue

The Congregation of Holy Cross and Stonehill have dedicated a memorial plaque in honor of Fr. Thomas Duffy, C.S.C. and the members of the Holy Cross Mission Band. It will be displayed in the Chapel of Donahue Hall. It reads, "May the College ever be mindful that its existence depended on the preaching of the Word of God. May Stonehill continue that mission."
My Brother's Keeper to Build on Campus

My Brother's Keeper (MBK), a Brockton-based volunteer Christian ministry that delivers free food and furniture to local people in need, plans to build a facility on campus. Established in 1988, MBK has grown steadily and today has hundreds of volunteers, including many Stonehill students, who assist thousands of poor families, single parents and senior citizens each year.

The new 12,000 square foot structure will be a two-story red brick edifice in keeping with Stonehill's architectural tradition. The MBK facility will be a center for training and involving students in community service and a distribution center, meeting the growing demand from surrounding communities.

Located on land owned by the Congregation of Holy Cross, the facility is scheduled to open in late 2000. With MBK on campus, the Stonehill community will have more opportunities for helping its neighbors.

Into The Streets

Chris Seusing '01, sings with a local nursing home resident as part of Stonehill's "Into the Streets" day in August. Almost 600 students took part in the day of community service.

The last sentence in Stonehill's mission states that "a Stonehill education encourages students to develop a lifelong desire for self-discovery and commitment to service." The College expects that those qualities "will lead to truly purposeful and rewarding lives." The "Into the Streets" experience serves as a prelude to that education.

Of course today's experience is a largely symbolic exercise. Today's venturing from the confines of the Stonehill campus "Into the Streets" will mean nothing if it is a one-time event. Today's "Into the Streets" is really a symbol of what college should be for you - a progressively wider and richer experience of life. This experience will take many forms.

It may take the form of developing friendships with other students who are different from you, students of different racial and religious backgrounds or students from other countries. That is one way of moving beyond the corner of the room where you usually spend your time.

It may take the form of trips into Boston and Cambridge to the museums and theaters, to the sports arenas and concert halls there. That is another way of moving into a wider world.

Or, as it did today, the experience may take the form of reaching out to others whose circumstances in life are markedly different, and more difficult, than your own. In doing so you both touch the lives of others and shape your own lives in ways you could never foresee from within the boundaries of Stonehill.

Or the experience may take any number of other forms, not least of which is serious study of the world in which you live, study of the various aspects and the many faces of that world, the kind of study that will make you both wiser and better able to make your way in that world.

This is what we at Stonehill hope for each one of you as you begin your college years. They are years full of promise for you. To make that promise come true, do not be afraid to leave the security of your dorm and the comfort of campus.

Be willing to test established habits and to question conventional ways of thinking. Be ready to venture into the new and the unfamiliar. At the same time learn to discriminate between what is merely novel or sensational and what is genuine and true. In fulfillment of our motto "Light and Hope" develop within yourselves the competence to see and the courage to act. May God who has gifted each of you with life, bless each of you throughout your college years.

Equestrian Dominates Regional Competition

The Stonehill equestrian team has enjoyed great success in the ’90s, and last season was no exception. The team proved to be dominant in Zone 1 competition, capturing top honors in the region for the sixth time in seven years. That translated into another solid performance at the ISHA National Championships held in Cazenovia, N.Y. where Stonehill placed ninth overall in team competition.

Senior captain Emily Unger concluded her outstanding career by placing in the top six in both the open flat and open fences classes. Unger captured the regional Cacchione Cup title for the third straight season and placed fourth at the nationals in the Cacchione Cup class for overall National Grand Champion. Unger, a regional finalist for NCAA Postgraduate Scholarship honors, was also named the 1999 Martin Scholar-Athlete of the Year. Freshmen Leah Kane and Elizabeth Kelly also paced Stonehill with a pair of top seven finishes in the walk trot canter and novice flat class, respectively, at the nationals.

Chieftain Chatter

Fall Sports Notebook

A pair of Stonehill freshman football standouts enjoyed record-breaking performances for the Chieftains on October 16th against Assumption College. Freshman defensive back Matt Walsh recorded the longest interception return in both school and Eastern Football Conference history, as he ran one back 97 yards for a touchdown. Fellow freshman Ryan McLane also set a new Stonehill record with a 71-yard punt in that same contest...The Stonehill women's tennis team clinched its 11th straight winning season winning ten dual-matches. Freshman Kristen McManus has been a standout this fall with a combined 19-5 mark in singles and doubles action...The men's soccer team surpassed its win total of last season, with seven wins in its first 14 matches, including a 2-1 victory over Merrimack, the first Stonehill win over the Warriors since 1990...After a record-setting performance last season, the Stonehill field hockey team has picked up where it left off, recording eleven victories to date and qualifying for the Northeast-10 tournament for the second straight season. Freshman Cindy Pultz has been named the Northeast-10's Newcomer of the Week on two occasions this season for her solid performance in goal...The Stonehill women's cross-country team has captured team titles at both the Stonehill and Saint Anselm Invitational, and freshman standout Carrie Bartlett has been named the Northeast-10's Newcomer of the Week on three occasions...The men's cross-country team captured the team title of the Stonehill Invitational and placed second at the Bryant Invitational...Freshman Cassie McNamee is a two-time selection as Northeast-10 Volleyball Newcomer of the Week this season, and the team has had nine match victories to date.

Fall 1999 7
When Assistant Dean for Academic Services Richard Grant first approached Religious Studies Assistant Professor Erika Schluntz about leading an archeological dig on the Stonehill campus, the archeologist-turned-religious-studies-professor was intrigued. But when he led her to the site of the John Dailey Homestead, which took over an hour to find, her excitement waned. She questioned whether the project would be possible.

"I had serious reservations because the area was so overgrown," Schluntz admits. "Dick was encouraging, however, and there was much student interest, so I decided to go ahead and put together a proposal."

The 1999 Summer Undergraduate Research Experience Program accepted her proposal to excavate the site of the former Easton hogreave's dwelling. As a result, Schluntz and three Stonehill students -- Andrew Deslaurier '00, Ryan Dowson '00, and Joelle Reed '00 -- immersed themselves in an eight-week archeological dig that unearthed a wealth of information about the Daileys and 18th century life in southeastern Massachusetts.

"The SURE program allowed us time to devote all of our attention to the dig," Schluntz explains. It also gave them an opportunity to work in the summer, the best time to do such work in this climate.

In 1996, an archeology class taught by Religious Studies Professor Michael Coogan attempted to excavate the Dailey site during the spring semester, but the weather did not cooperate. Coogan's class did, however, unearth two pewter spoons (see cover), chimney bricks, shards of pottery, broken glass and fragments of broken tools. They also completed some research, which Schluntz and her students used as a basis for their project.

With interest in history high during the College's 50th anniversary, the dig generated a lot of attention. More than a dozen Stonehill community members spent time digging alongside the students, including Health Care Associate Professor Craig Higgins, Grant and Biology Associate Professor Roger Denome. The students quickly learned that academic research is not conducted in a vacuum.

"The Stonehill community's interest in the project was amazing," says Reed, an English and Sociology major. "The support of faculty and administrators, as well as other students, really kept us going."

Interest came from off-campus as well, with two local newspapers, The Enterprise and The Easton Journal, publishing feature articles on the dig.

The group's first goal was to assess the site, which sits deep in the woods of the Stonehill campus off of Rhododendron Drive. The group set out to obtain the dimensions of the building, the number of outbuildings and to get as much information as they could to piece together a picture of the Dailey family's daily life.

The foundation shows Dailey's home to be only 250 square feet. It is unclear whether there was a second story on the house, as none of the wooden structure remains. With the stone foundation intact, however, the group was able to outline the small building. They also determined where the well, animal pens, and midden were located. In colonial times, middens were used to dump broken tools, glass, hearth ashes and other useless organic materials.

"At first glance, it appeared that they were not terribly well-off," says Schluntz, "but given the artifacts uncovered, we concluded that the Daileys were actually more well-off than originally anticipated."

One of the most interesting artifacts, discovered by Dowson, is a bronze coin with the likeness of King George II of England, who reigned from 1727 until his death in 1760.

"Finding the coin was the most exciting moment for me," he recalls. "I dug it up just as Professor Coogan was about to leave one morning. I knew from the second I saw it that I was looking at more than just a quarter."

The group also uncovered a musketball; shards of tobacco pipe; pieces of window glass; pottery; and imported china from China and England, including some Wedgewood.

Archeologists generally learn the most from pottery, according to Schluntz, as it is the daily-use material that helps determine the "who, what, when and under what circumstances." In addition, the presence of window glass is an indication that the Daileys had money to spare, notes Schluntz, adding that at that time, the poor used oilcloth to cover their windows. The imported china, she adds, was another indicator of the Dailey's wealth.

"We were only able to draw these conclusions after much research," says Deslaurier, who is majoring in International and Religious Studies. "It gave us an understanding of not only the Dailey's life, but of the significant impact families like them had on America. They were the real trailblazers and are the reason we are all here today. For that, we owe them a lot."

There is a hole
Where life was once lived
And people survived.
Hands, sweat.
Objects remain,
Evidence of life.
People die.
Hands hurt,
The rocks fall.
It disturbs me how easily
we forget our past.

--written about the Dailey Homestead in 1996 by a former student in Physics Professor Chet Raymo's nature writing class.
"The hands-on learning was a fantastic experience. While I learned that archeology is not as exciting as you would think, it taught me patience and teamwork, which will serve me well in the future, no matter what career I pursue."

"While the students had never participated in an archeological excavation, Schluntz has worked on digs in Israel, Turkey and Jordan. During her last project, she excavated a 2000-year-old palace in the desert, which couldn’t be a more different experience than the dig on campus, she reflects. Schluntz found the Dailey dig to be more rewarding, however, because the site was actually occupied in the near past, relatively speaking, and the group learned about the actual people.

"It was so satisfying to know whose house we were digging," she explains. "To sit on the threshold of Mr. Dailey’s house and know it was his house and know what he did in his life made his family’s life so real. We could pick up parts of the bowls they used, find a button and know whose coat it belonged to, touch part of a pipe that he smoked. All these things made the Daileys come alive for us."

"At times we called out to John Dailey, asking him to lead us in the right direction to solve the mysteries of his life," smiles Reed. "But it was still fun finding the clues on our own and discussing our ideas about where the fireplace or door may have stood, where the horse and buggies wheeled by, and what kind of lifestyle his family lived."

The students found that as much as two-thirds of archeology is done in the library. They researched 18th century culture, clay pipes and pottery, among other things. The group also studied John Dailey’s last will and testament, visited the Dailey’s gravesites and went to Deerfield, where a group of homes from the same time-period still stand with intact artifacts inside.

Visiting the cemetery took the science out and put the people first, according to Deslaurier. "Seeing their gravestones made me realize that we were digging up someone’s home. It was not just a lab anymore, but someone’s life, where love, hardship, struggle and joy had once been. I think that hit home with all of us and we showed our respect by taking care of everything we handled. From then on, they were people’s belongings, not simply artifacts," he states.

"In ancient archeology, you never get that connection," says Schluntz. "You know nothing about the people unless you’re dealing with a king. So while our research on campus is not going to change the course of history, it was personally rewarding."
After digging through enough dirt to fill a classroom, finding enough bricks to build an office in Duffy Academic Center, and discovering enough artifacts to give each Stonehill student a souvenir, Schluntz says the students are true experts on the Daileys and colonial life in Massachusetts. They first got a chance to share this knowledge with others during a tour of the site this summer. "I was so proud as I listened to them. It made me realize how far we had come from that first week of simply clearing the site of vegetation and debris to prepare it for excavation," Schluntz reflects.

In terms of the students' education, Schluntz says this project was a real benefit. "All of a sudden, they were experts, and students don't usually get that in the classroom."

"It's one thing to look at a picture in a book, but quite another to actually do it," adds Dowson, a History and Political Science major. "The hands-on learning was a fantastic experience. While I learned that archeology is not as exciting as you would think, it taught me patience and teamwork, which will serve me well in the future, no matter what career I pursue."

"Anyone who spends time at an archeological site soon realizes that archeology is not all Indiana Jones," Schluntz warns. "For every musket-ball you find, for every 'gee whiz' discovery, you spend an hour or two of moving and sifting dirt and finding nothing but dirt." The group also maintained daily field forms, a tedious chore, but necessary to keep accurate records. "It isn't a thrill a minute and part of the challenge is keeping the motivation up," she adds. "I just keep in mind that it took a long time for this stuff to get buried, so it takes a long time to dig it up."

"Staying motivated was tough when I was sweating in the brutal heat, dirty and getting where I thought was nowhere," says Deslaurier. "At those times, I would get up and look around and try to see the big picture. As Professor Schluntz told us, 'even in the not finding, you are finding.' What she meant was that if we didn't find anything in a particular area that could give us a clue as to the construction of the floor, the depth of a wall or the home's layout. So, we put the details in a framework to see them as part of a larger whole."

"The skills we learned from this experience only further what we've already learned in our respective disciplines," comments Reed. "The ability to learn in a variety of ways and taste many academic areas is what makes Stonehill special for me."

Reed found loads of pottery in her trench and was able to piece together almost half a bowl. She said she would lay it out in her room each night and try to match the pieces. "It was like a 300-year-old puzzle just waiting to be put together," she explains. "It was a neat challenge and one of my favorite parts of the experience."

"The homestead got in my head and is now a part of who I am," concludes Deslaurier. "Even though the project was the most challenging academic and physical work I've ever done, I am half disappointed that I can't do it again next summer."

Schluntz has a long list of interested students vying to spend next summer digging even deeper into the Dailey Homestead. And she says she can't wait to join them to see what other mysteries they may unlock.

Sandra Howe is Stonehill's Director of Media Relations.
January 1997: Our breakfasts are usually fruit, juice, freshly baked bread, jam and Tanzanian coffee. We have eight chickens and a rooster, so eggs are plentiful. Our milk comes fresh from the mission farm daily but must be boiled. By noon the temperature reaches 104°F. It’s much too hot to walk but quite dry. There has been no rain for 146 days and a serious drought is feared. The hospital is about a 15 minute walk from our house, which is in a multi-national complex.

People are very friendly and the patients are most grateful for anything you do. The pathology here is incredible, from leprosy, worm infestations, cerebral malaria, and most tropical fevers. HIV constitutes about 40 percent of the hospital population.

Family values are somewhat unique in that the elderly are never made to feel useless, religion is one of joy and not guilt, where no child is an orphan, where you ask for directions and the person gets in your car and rides to your destination and then insists on walking home.

There are very few white people except at the compound so one really stands out. We work daily at mastering Kiswahili. These are exciting times here because they are opening Tanzania’s second medical school, and the first Lutheran Medical School in Africa, located at this hospital, and we are a very important part of the process.

February 1997: The caseload at the hospital remains challenging. New cases include terminal tetanus or lockjaw with tragic consequences, liver abscess from amebiasis, worms and, of course, the ever present malaria and AIDS.

The poverty and lack of personal resources is beyond belief. Local schools are dilapidated, and without desks or books, with as many as 150 children per teacher. Food for the average middle class family is rice, beans and vegetables with meat served at best once a week. There is plenty of fruit, second hand clothes and much walking, as there are few roads and fewer cars. Most citizens seldom go beyond 30 km of their home in a lifetime. The families are very large and everyone depends on their neighbors for security.

Water is expensive and scarce, carried daily on the head of the woman in the family and is used for cooking, washing and cleaning. Few homes have electricity and fewer plumbing. Human waste is used as a fertilizer and since there are few toilets most people relieve themselves wherever. This results in the waste drying in the hot sun and being blown as a fine dust in the afternoon winds. Of course, this causes much disease and everyone gets worms shortly after arriving.

On Dec. 9, 1996, David ’59 and Anna Pomfret left Boston to practice medicine in a missionary hospital in Tanzania. They left successful jobs as clinical professors of medicine at Tufts University Medical School. In addition, Anna was Director of Physical Medicine at New England Rehabilitation Hospital and David was a cardiologist at Metrowest Medical Center. In a series of dispatches emailed from their new home, they describe a life that couldn’t be more different from life in New England.

Labor is so inexpensive that most things are handmade and always repaired, usually with little skill and a lack of concern to fine detail. There is no thought to time and the simplest task may take several hours and even days to complete.

Despite the above descriptions we grow to love it here. Last weekend we visited the second largest national park, Tarangire, which contains millions of animals. We drove through the woods, swamps, and desert covering about 550 km in two days. We saw lions, zebra, wildebeeste, buffalo, giraffe, antelope, elephants and impala. The animals are spectacular and they roam in huge herds. You feel you can almost touch them as they come to the truck looking so very innocent. The only warnings are the silent piles of bones that remain from recent kills.

March 1997: I will spend one week with the flying doctors in Hanang, a city in northern Tanzania where we provide consultant services to the referral hospitals. The flight out and back in old, tired and marginal aircraft is less than comforting and comfortable.

I am amazed at the extreme variety of pathology we see. Anna has started to record unusual neurological manifestations of terminal AIDS victims. About 50 percent of our in-patient census is HIV positive.

Another strange thing is that Anna and I are very old in this country (life expectancy is 46), and since the elderly are revered, we are constantly greeted with the term “Shikmoo mzee” to which one responds “Marahaba” or “I offer you my respect elderly one,” to which I respond “I accept your respect.” In making rounds, this scenario will occur about 15 times an hour.

This constant referral to age causes one to reflect on one’s age. I am a full generation out of medical school with three and one-half grandchildren, happily married 33 years but I often still think of myself as young. The realization of all this has only become obvious since coming to Africa and yet I feel stronger, healthier, more intellectually curious, and indeed happier. We have set up a new home, learned a new language, and acquired a new culture. Even our work is different in that we lack the modern tools of our trade and revert to clinical skills learned so many years ago.

April 1997: The drought ended March 21 after seven months of sunshine. Kilimanjaro is no longer visible due to the clouds. Dust is no longer an issue, but we now contend with water and mud. The amount of rain that falls is unbelievable.
From malaria and this year two to three billion people will be at risk.

December 1997: We have recently returned from a five-day break on the beaches of Zanzibar. The island is like a huge Bermuda. No doubt the world’s best snorkeling, coral reefs, white sandy beaches and Africa’s finest restaurants. Although you read in the world press accounts of church bombings and destruction of the municipal plants by the anti-socialist party, we found it one of the most peaceful places in Africa.

The most satisfying adventure since arriving in Africa was when I visited Kileo, a small village of 4,000 where Anna is carrying out research in female genital schistosomiasis. Nearly a year ago, we visited and found that a huge solar panel installation, which supplies this village with its water, had not worked in seven years. This required the residents to walk six km to fetch water. Last Friday, armed with an Ohmmeter and tools, we managed to trace the breakdown to a fried junction box and upon recovering the pump found it in excellent repair. Bypassing the junction box, we started the pump and it worked perfectly. Needless to say there was great joy, and pombe (local brew) was brought forth and the fatted cow slaughtered and all manner of festivities ensued.

January 1998: This AIDS epidemic is mind-boggling and despite the improvement in case numbers in the US and Europe, Africa, especially the Subsahara, now houses 90 percent of the world’s AIDS victims. Ignorance is not driving the AIDS epidemic. Poverty and inequality are its motors. In Tanzania, everyone you speak to has lost a family member, a colleague or a friend. If you have not seen someone, you do not ask where or how they are. One third of all children are orphans to AIDS.

March 1998: A few days after our last dispatch we left for Kenya. As would be expected, much time was allotted to malaria, AIDS and tropical disease. We attended a political demonstration against the Kenyan leader, Daniel Arap Moi, in Uhuru (freedom) Park, Nairobi. Thousands of protesters were there, being stirred up by the political opposition to Moi. We began to hear gunfire and gingerly made our way back to the hotel. Probably not our most prudent adventure.

April 1998: El Nino caused incredible damage to East Africa’s fragile infrastructure, destroying the marginal roads, washing away vital bridges, lost homes and crops. It also brought serious disease, such as Rift Valley Fever, wiping out herds of animals. Unfortunately, people were not spared either. Cholera was rampant due to the persistent flooding of latrines and overtaxing sewage facilities. Malaria, always a serious problem, has become more so due to the moisture and accelerated breeding of mosquitoes. Snakes have been a problem too. While taking a shower last week, I felt something around my leg. It was a black snake half out of the tub drain and half-wrapped around my leg. I bounded out of the tub to fall securely on my left hip. Anna rushed into the bathroom to ask what had happened and I told her there was a snake in the tub. She told me I was insane, then looked into the tub to see the snake returning to the drain. We have sealed off the opening to both bathrooms and the kitchen drains hoping to avoid further bother.

June 1998: Due to the AIDS epidemic, we are struggling with a most lethal manifestation of atypical tuberculosis. This disease has enjoyed resurgence in the US as well as elsewhere and is a menace here. Wards are filled with open cases that are not isolated and few patients ever cover their mouth when they cough.

Aid agencies say a concerted attack on poverty must start with an expansion of basic social services, particularly health and education. The poorest nations, however, have precious little to spare at schools and hospitals once they have serviced their enormous debts. In Africa, as a whole one of every two children does not go to school and the governments spend four times more in debt payments to creditors than they spend on health and education.

September 1998: After a three-month visit to the US, we are delighted to be back and to reinforce in our spirit the idea that this is now home. The strength and glitter of Tanzania’s imaginative grip lie in its ability to weave detail into detail, the lovingly real and possible into the extravagantly impossible, created with the same imaginative precision. We arrived to a yard of beautiful flowers, all our fruit trees burdened with produce, and our animals so pleased to see us. Both the faculty at the university and medical school and our hospital seemed genuinely overjoyed at our return. No mention of the inconveniences caused by our absence, just a real sense of family and being made more remarkable by the distinct difference in culture and skin color. Of course the beautiful Kilimanjaro was the crowning beauty of our return.

The tranquility and peace generated here in Moshi is so very addictive and totally contrary to the busy and hurried existence we experienced in the States. We genuinely enjoyed the paved roads of New England, the beautiful beaches, uninterrupted electricity, air conditioning, fast foods, punctual appointments, and vast selection. We missed, however, the genuine peace of people less troubled with financial gains, professional values and personal selfishness. Perhaps this is what has meant the most to us in Africa and on this return it was the most vivid.
November 1998: One of our flying doctors’ planes crashed killing all aboard. This, of course, has us all concerned as I leave Tuesday for my monthly stint with flying doctors in Sharati, a hospital close to the Rwandan border with no electricity and a marginal landing strip.

Our electrical problems continue and I don’t think we have had a full day of power since August. When you return to the US you notice so many things taken for granted by Americans. How orderly and clean the cities become apparent very quickly. In no way do I since August. When you return to the US you don’t think we have had a notice so many things taken for granted by world’s population accounts for 86 percent of developing country like Tanzania, but it is those poor children who are most likely to die of air and water pollution. Twenty percent of the world’s population accounts for 86 percent of its consumption. Sadly, in this rich country one watches the incessant parade of death among the young. One in five children will die before their fifth birthday.

February 1999: While driving, we found ourselves sliding off a narrow bridge into a river. No one was hurt but getting out of the car was an effort, compounded by the fact that we had damaged a nest of biting ants on the way into the river. We got out of the car and then spent the ensuing half-hour pulling these ants off our skin.

We took our daughter Heidi and her husband Jim, who are visiting, on a tour of the Serengeti. It must house four million wildebeest at this time of the year, thus attracting many lions, cheetahs, and leopards. There are also waterbuck, who are mean and huge, hippo in most ponds and lakes, and countless birds, including flamingo of magnificent color and beauty. We found a family of cheetah and drove though the bush and parked about four meters from them. As we sat, a young male came and jumped on our hood, which was warm and high and decided to sit and watch us through the windscreen. He appeared perfectly at home and it allowed us to see his magnificent lines at a much closer range than one would like.

March 1999: One awakens to see more and more snow on Kilimanjaro so that now fully half the mountain is covered from the half way hut to the summit. The gardens and yards are now green and grass grows where only yellow dust and mud stood a few weeks ago. Flowers are ablaze and fruit trees flourish.

I finally learned how to transmit digital pictures as attachments on email, a skill I could not seem to master for the longest time. We are using this technique to relay telemedicine x-rays, pathology and lesions to the US and elsewhere for second opinions. Our Department of Dermatology has had this in effect for over a year now with the University of Zurich, making us the first University hospital with telemedicine in Africa.

May 1999: As I have stated in the past, the elders are revered and respected. I walk for pleasure, but when one 12-year old saw me he put his hand into his pocket and offered me 100 shillings to take a bus. Little did he know by his standards I was immensely rich. I wondered how his parents had brought him up to act so generously to an old man from another country. I only hoped my grandchildren would do the same.

The problems at the medical school continue with lack of full-time faculty, especially in the basic sciences. The problem primarily is that Tanzania has only 900 doctors for its more than 30 million people, rendering it the most doctor poor nation on earth.

August 1999: We have decided to return to the US in January, just two months shy of four years from our first Tanzanian visit. We will return three months each year to teach and work beginning March of 2000.

Tragically, one of our planes crashed this week killing an eye surgeon and seriously injuring the pilot and three other passengers. This is the third serious crash in seven months with the loss of several lives and all the aircraft. I am giving most serious consideration to ending my flying doctor commitment despite the enjoyment and interest it brings.

The millennium is ending not with a settled and prosperous world order but with instability bordering on anarchy. There is something wrong about a system that apportions risk to those able to bear it least and that tolerates grotesque disparities in wealth. For example, a US medical library subscribes to 5,000 journals just to keep abreast of the latest health research; Nairobi University Medical School, long regarded as a center of excellence in East Africa, receives 20. The idea that the Internet and technology transfer will make globalization all-inclusive is fatuous when a country as Tanzania has reportedly three phone lines for every 1,000 people. Among the hype for everything online, it is easy to forget that 80 percent of the world’s population have never even used a telephone, let alone sent an email message.

September 1999: The recurrent question of aging seems to plague my mind with issues of so very much to do and what now appears to be so little time to do it. This causes some uneasiness in spirit and makes one realize that age is unlikely to be a keenly anticipated period in anyone’s life, and no amount of euphemistic camouflage by the senior citizen lobby can make it anymore attractive than a long awaited bill that finally arrives.

Despite the problems, Africa remains a challenge, a true adventure that should not be missed and perhaps one of the great highlights of our lives. We encourage any of you who think they would like to experience the adventure to join us and share in these magnificent people and land. Karibuni sana, you are most welcome.

Grants and Gifts

The Charles A. Frueauff Foundation has awarded Stonehill a $60,000 grant to establish the Charles A. Frueauff Endowed Scholarship at Stonehill. This grant will provide a permanent scholarship at Stonehill. The Frueauff Foundation has been one of the strongest supporters of scholarship programs for academically talented and financially needy students.

The Massachusetts Campus Compact has awarded Stonehill a grant to continue the North Junior High School (Brockton)/Stonehill tutoring program. The tutoring program also received a $3,200 grant from the State Street Foundation.

The Southeastern Association for Cooperation in Higher Education in Massachusetts, SACHEM, including Stonehill, Bridgewater State College, Cape Cod Community College, and the University of Massachusetts, has received a three-year grant from the U.S. Department of Education to strengthen and improve undergraduate instruction in international studies and foreign languages. The grant will assist with faculty development, foreign language instruction, and foreign language across the curriculum.

In August, Stonehill received a gift of $2.85 million from the Estate of Edward E. Martin, a longtime friend and benefactor of the College.

The Ira W. DeCamp Foundation, New York, N.Y. has made a gift of $25,000 to the MacPhaidin Library.

The Jackson Construction Company has made a $12,500 contribution to the MacPhaidin Library.

The Charles A. Mastronardi Foundation has made a $10,000 contribution to the College.

Alumni and Parents’ Funds Set New Records

The 1999 Alumni and Parents’ Funds set new records for total dollars contributed.

Under the direction of General Chair, James “Lou” Gorman ’53, the Alumni Fund exceeded the $700,000 mark for the first time. In total, 3,715 graduates contributed $703,433 and 18 classes exceeded 100 percent of their dollar goal. In addition, 806 individuals increased their gift to the College.

Parent giving continued its strong tradition of support to the College, raising $125,179 for the Parents’ Fund. Under the guidance of Dennis and Jackie Hanson, parents of Erika ’00, 595 parents made a gift to the Fund. The average gift to the 1999 Parents’ Fund was $210, an eight percent increase over the 1998 average gift of $193.

The College thanks all those who participated in the 1999 Fund drives and looks forward to your continued support.

President's Dinner 1999

The annual President’s Dinner, a gala affair held in June for the local business community, capped a yearlong calendar of celebrations in honor of the College’s golden anniversary.

Richard Stracynski, President & CEO of People’s Savings Bank, served as Chair of the dinner which raised more than $100,000 for the College. Proceeds from the President’s Dinner were used to support the Stonehill Undergraduate Research Experience (SURE Program), the Outstanding Faculty Award and the College’s 50th anniversary programs.
Dear Alumni, Parents and Friends,

As I come to the end of my tenure as president, I would like to discuss the subject of fund-raising. While I have developed a reputation for being an effective fund raiser, it is not a responsibility that I relish. I was trained to be a theologian and never imagined that I would devote a huge portion of my professional life to fund-raising. Asking someone for a donation or a gift is an intimate and, at times, nerve-wracking experience.

At Stonehill, however, I have been fortunate because so many alumni, parents and friends have made an awkward task that much easier for me. Reflecting on 21 years of asking people for support, I recall so many warm and encouraging moments. I will cherish those memories always.

Therefore, I want everyone who has responded to my various appeals to know how much your generosity has meant to me. No matter what our position in life is, we all need to be sustained in spirit and I count myself blessed to have benefited from the enormous good will of so many members of the Stonehill family.

Of course, the challenges never end. For example, while the College has set new and previously unimaginable fund-raising records in recent years, nevertheless, the percentage of alumni who contribute to the Annual Fund has dropped. As Lou Gorman '53 points out in his letter, we need to reverse this trend, which is impacting not just Stonehill but colleges nationwide.

As we address this challenge, I would like to salute those of you who are already giving and to let you know how much we appreciate your loyalty and involvement. Moreover, we need your energy, ideas and contacts to help us to encourage more alumni to get involved.

To those alumni who might have fallen out of the habit of giving or never developed it, I invite you to join us. As the saying goes: "Every one of us has been warmed by fires we did not build. Every one of us has drunk from wells we did not dig. We can do no less for those who come after us, and together we can do much more."

If Stonehill is to have a bright future, we need the participation of as many alumni, parents and friends as possible. The College has done well in recent years, but we are still nowhere near our full potential, which is why your support is imperative. With renewed appreciation, I am

Sincerely in Holy Cross,

(Fr.) Bartley MacPhaidin, C.S.C.
President

Dear Fellow Alumni,

My sincere thanks to the 3,715 of you who contributed to the 1999 Alumni Fund. Without your help, our 50th anniversary celebration would not have been so spectacular.

During the year, the College hosted numerous regional alumni events; Father MacPhaidin celebrated his 20th year as President; and the Alumni Fund attained a new dollar record by raising $703,433. Then, U.S. News and World Report rated Stonehill the number one liberal arts college in the northeast. We have every right to take pride in our alma mater and I hope that all the good news inspires all of us to help Stonehill grow even stronger.

To a great extent, Stonehill's standing is due to alumni support and our continued success depends on our ability to increase our level of alumni participation. While I am very pleased that 3,715 alumni contributed to the Alumni Fund, this figure represents a disappointing 28% participation rate.

Comparing our rate with: Regis College - 44%, Holy Cross - 50.1%, Saint Michael's - 32%, Saint Anselm's - 32% and Providence College - 33%, we still have a way to go.

Therefore, for Alumni Fund 2000, we are raising our participation goal to 32%. This is definitely a reachable goal. Stonehill however, will need everyone's help to achieve it. To continue the successful momentum of our first 50 years, we need your help over the next 50 - starting now!

Again, my sincere thanks to everyone who made a gift to the Alumni Fund this past year.

Sincerely,

James "Lou" Gorman '53
Alumni Fund Chair

Comprised of donors who contributed a gift of $250 to $499.

The College is sincerely grateful and deeply appreciative of the generous financial support that is provided by the Congregation of Holy Cross - Eastern Province. During the past year, the Congregation's gift, in excess of $75,000, has been directed toward their pledge for the Capital Campaign and the MacPhailin Library and has enhanced Stonehill's cultural diversity scholarship fund. We would like to thank and recognize the Holy Cross Religious who are assigned to Stonehill College and those who are graduates of the institution.
Comprised of donors who contributed a gift of $100 to $249.

David Almeida, associate professor of education, presented a series of workshops on learning disabilities to instructors involved with the Adult Learning Center in Brockton as part of the Massachusetts Department of Education's Young Adults with Learning Disabilities Program.

J. Richard Anderson, assistant professor of business administration, has had his case, "Sunbeam Corporation," accepted for publication in Corporate Financial Reporting: Text and Cases.

Antonio Barbagallo, associate professor of foreign languages, had his article, "El Tema Del Amor En El Quijote" published in Actas Del Coloquio Internacional Cervantes En Andalucia, April 1999, Estepa, Spain. He read "Neruda Poeta Irracional, Metafíctico Y Desesperado" at the XIX Encuentro Internacional De Aldeeu in Santander, Spain, June 1999. Barbagallo read "Las Ventas Del Quijote: Un Microcosmos Encantado Y Encantador" at the Mid-American Conference on Hispanic Literature, University of Missouri-Columbia, in October.

Sheila Barry, medical science coordinator, was recently elected to the Board of Directors of the American Cancer Society, Tri-County Unit. She led Stonehill students on the Making Strides for Breast Cancer Walk in October and was one of the graders of the Teacher Certification Exam for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts—Biology Section.

Peter Beisheim, professor of religious studies, was honored as one of the founders of Old Colony Hospice at their dinner/auction in September.

John Broderick, professor of sociology, was invited to write an entry on deviant behavior for the Encyclopedia of Criminology and Deviant Behavior; was appointed book review editor of The International Journal of Police Practice and Research; co-authored a paper on volunteer services for mentally handicapped parolees; and attended a meeting of the International Police Executive Symposium in Vienna, Austria, where he presented a paper on interdisciplinary exchanges between police manager and researchers.

Richard Capobianco, associate professor of philosophy, was reappointed director of Stonehill's Honors Program.

Tony-Lee Capossela, associate professor of writing and Writing Program director, was a finalist in the National Writing Program Association's (NWPA) best writing center book competition for her book, The Harcourt Brace Guide to Peer Tutoring. The finalists were announced at the NWPA annual meeting in Atlanta, Ga.

Fr. James Chichetto, C.S.C. '64, assistant professor of writing, is listed as an editor, poet and critic in the new Marquis Who's Who in America, 2000 and in the recent International Authors and Writers Who's Who, 16th edition. He has been published over 300 times, both under his own name and under various pseudonyms. He was again invited to participate in the Renaissance Institute at Hilton Head Island, S.C. (Jan. 2000) and was appointed this past summer to the Board of Directors of the East and West Literary Foundation. This past semester, while on sabbatical, he gave a reading in London from Book One of his manuscript, Massatoi, an Epic. He has work recent and forthcoming in Native American Poetry Anthology, Poet's Market, Link, End of the Century American Poets Anthology, The Connecticut Poetry Review, Indian Council Quarterly, and What Rough Beast: Poems at the End of the Century.

Carol Ann Davis, instructor of writing, received the 1999-2000 W.K. Rose Fellowship from Vassar College, her alma mater, with a cash award that will allow her to focus on her poetry.

Barbara Estrin, professor of English, will have her article "Roméo and Juliet and the Art of Naming Love" anthologized in Shakespearean Criticism to appear in Spring 2000.

Fr. Tom Gariepy, C.S.C. '70, professor of history and philosophy of science, recently published "John Farquhar Fulton and the History of Science Society" in a special issue of Isis, the journal of the History of Science Society, that marked the 75th anniversary of the Society.

Len Krisak, English instructor, was a finalist for the "Discovery/The Nation" Prize in Poetry, January 1999. His two books of poetry, Midland and Fugitive Child were published in the spring. In Midland, the reader meets the various teachers, students, and coaches who are found at Midland High School. The cycle of poetry allows readers to reminisce about the unique individuals found in their high schools. Fugitive Child is a brief collection of lyrics on the themes of fatherhood and childlessness. He chaired a panel on the work of American Poet X.J. Kennedy at West Chester University in June. Krisak has poems already published or forthcoming in European Judaism, The Formalist, Brownstone Review, Spectrum, Seu'wester, and Agenda.
Kimberly Hess, campus minister of liturgy and music, will perform for “First Night” at Trinity Church on Copley Square.

Bonnie Kletz, associate professor of psychology, and five co-authors (Lisa Carvalho ’98, Jason Fredette ’98, Sarah Lapsley ’98, Keith Lavoie ’99 and Robyn Pelletier ’00), presented “DNA Evidence and Jurors’ Verdicts: It Doesn’t Erase All Reasonable Doubt” at the American Psychological Society’s Annual Conference in Denver, Colo. in June 1999.

Daniel Lamoureux, instructor in the fine arts department, has served as organist for liturgies of the Weston Jesuit School of Theology in Cambridge. In the past year he played for the 150th anniversary of the founding of Saint Peter’s Church and the 50th anniversary of Sancta Maria Hospital, both in Cambridge. He has played organ recitals in Boston at the Basilica of Our Lady of Perpetual Help and at Trinity Church in Copley Square.

Geoffrey Lantos, professor of business administration, presented the following: refereed a journal article titled “Motivating Moral Corporate Behavior” in Journal of Consumer Marketing; published “Nurturing Professionalism in Our Students” in Marketing Educator, Spring 1999; “Let’s Hook Students on Reading” in Marketing Educator, Summer 1999; published “The Myth of Predatory Pricing” in The Pricing Advisor, April 1999. In May, he was the invited speaker at the Symposium on Teaching Marketing Ethics at the University of Notre Dame, where he presented “Motivating Moral Corporate Behavior.”

José Martínez, assistant professor of Spanish, presented “Puerto Rican Cultural Traditions: Literature, Music, Art, and Religion” as a Visiting Scholar at the Goals 2000 Institute—Bringing the Standards to Life: Interdisciplinary Arts at the University of Massachusetts-Dartmouth in June. The institute was funded by a Massachusetts Endowment for Humanities grant.
Jane Nash, associate professor of psychology, co-authored an article with Ralph Bravaco, professor of mathematics and computer science and Louis Liotta, associate professor of chemistry, titled "Measuring Conceptual Change in Organic Chemistry," which appeared in Journal of Chemical Education. Nelson O’Ceallaigh Ritschel, instructor in the English department, presented "W.B. Yeats and the Alternative Aesthetic" in May at Indiana University’s Nationalism and a National Theatre: One Hundred Years of Irish Theatre. His article “Arthur Griffith’s Debate on Synge” was published in Lit: Literature, Interpretation, Theory’s special issue Ireland: The Presence of the Past, Part II, Summer 1999.

Robert Rosenthal, professor of economics, was appointed by Brockton Mayor Jack Yunits to a four-member task force to help implement the new "Workforce Investment Act" (federal legislation involving employment and training policy) at the local level. He will work with other regional stakeholders and a Washington, D.C.-based consultant to facilitate a smooth transition to the new legislation that takes effect on July 1, 2000. Rosenthal attended a conference this summer sponsored by the U.S. Department of Labor which focused on all aspects of the Workforce Investment Act.

Rita Smith ’62, director of the Stonehill Education Project, appeared on a live television (via satellite) PBS special on "Creating Tomorrow’s Learner-Centered Environments-Today"; delivered an address on "Learner-Centered Environments" to trainers in the educational division of PeopleSoft in Pleasanton, Calif.; consulted on the "Classroom of the Future" sponsored by PeopleSoft; conducted all-day workshops on "Interactive Teaching" for the faculty of Bishop Fenwick High School in Danvers and sponsorship of the Middle School Alliance Goals 2000.

William Walsh ’87, instructor of writing, had two short stories published this fall: "Mr. and Mrs. Abbott and Costello" in The Sulphur River Literary Review, and "Murphy Bed" in Lit, No. 2. He also won a platinum award from Business Forms, Labels and Systems, a printer’s trade magazine, for a direct mail piece that he designed for his full-time employer, The Regal Press, Inc.

Celia Wolf-Devine, associate professor of philosophy, was an invited panelist at the World Congress of Philosophy in Boston in August at which she delivered "Pluralism and the Philosophical Curriculum." Her article, "Rawsian and Feminist Critiques of the Traditional Family," appeared in The Family, Civil Society and the State. She will be listed in the Year 2000 edition of The Marquis Who’s Who in America.

Maryjean Viano Crowe, assistant professor of fine arts, is participating in an invitational exhibit at the Red Eye Gallery of the Rhode Island School of Design this fall, and gave an artist’s school-wide lecture at RISD in September. At the New Art Center in Newton, she displayed her work at the Altars & Icons Invitational Exhibit and Fundraiser in November. Crowe and Candace Walters, assistant professor of fine arts, are two of 60 New England women artists invited to participate in the "Cardigan Project," a gala benefit art auction to raise funds for families in the Kent Street Apartments in Boston. The event is sponsored by the Women’s Supported Housing & Empowerment, Inc. in partnership with The Community Builders, a non-profit developer. The works will be auctioned in November at the Copley Plaza in Boston.
Stonehill hit Boston this summer, with four events drawing several hundred alumni, family and friends into the city. On May 8, 120 alumni filed into Symphony Hall for an evening with the Boston POPS. Over 70 Stonehill graduates joined alumni from numerous colleges for a Young Alumni Harbor Cruise on June 17. July 18 saw alumni boarding the famous Duck Tours for a unique look at the city's historic districts. Alumni and their families enjoyed a trip around the city in two of the "DUCKs," culminating with the "splashdown" into the Charles River. The event ended with an ice cream social. July 31 featured the annual Stonehill Day at Fenway Park. Following a luncheon at the exclusive Diamond Club, 100 alumni were treated to a thrilling, bottom-of-the-ninth victory by the Boston Red Sox over Roger Clemens and the New York Yankees.

The Annual Alumni Golf Tournament was held on Sept. 25 at Easton Country Club. The sold-out event featured over 120 golfers. The winning foursome included Sean Connolly '88, Mike Burrell '87, Jeff Tougas '88 and Bob Sobolewski '88.

Alumni Weekend '99, held on Oct. 1-3, was a huge success. Almost 700 young alumni attended a reception at the Boston Sheraton on Friday night. A Decade of the '50s Luncheon was held on Saturday afternoon and over 35 families attended a special Legacy Admissions Day. Additionally, 500 alumni and their families attended the alumni family_tailgate party. A special Memorial Mass was offered on Sunday morning in memory of Matthew McDonough '99.

Fifty-five alumni attended the Sept. 10 Red Sox game at Yankee Stadium, in the Bronx, N.Y., and 30 attended the Oct. 3 game at Camden Yards in Baltimore, Md.

At Your (Career) Service

Stonehill's Career Services Office is committed to helping alumni succeed in their job search goals. Highlighted below are some of the services available to alumni --

Resume Referral Program (RRP): This program is an automated resume matching system that will help you get your job hunt underway by directly linking you with prospective employers. Throughout the year, the office matches student and alumni resumes registered with the RRP service to job listings using criteria you and the employer select. Register by calling the office for a brochure and registration form.

Job Vacancy Listings: Alumni can access job listings by visiting the office and via the website. The office lists vacancies in a wide variety of career fields and often has vacancies for experienced alumni. On the website (community.stonehill.edu/career_services), you'll find links to some of the newest listings on the "Hot Jobs" page. You'll also have access to a wide variety of job listing sites, including JobTrak. Stonehill's JobTrak password is "duffy."

Individual Advisement: One-on-one consultations are available in person, via email and over the phone. These meetings can be used for advice on job search strategies, resume and cover letter writing, interviewing tips and general career counseling.

Career Resource Center: The Career Services Office offers access to a collection of books and other useful materials that many alumni find helpful in their job searches. We also have a computer and laser printer for use in preparing job search correspondence and in using the WWW as a job search tool.

Alumni Career Network: Would you like to assist current Stonehill students and other alumni with their job search/career process? Join the Alumni Career Network, a program designed to refer job searchers to alumni in their field of interest. For more information about the Alumni Career Network, go to the Career Services website. You can even join online.

If you have any questions, please contact the Career Services Office at (508) 565-1325. We look forward to serving you.

The Career Services Committee of the Alumni Council has open membership to any alumni interested in assisting students and alumni through career-related programming. Contact the Alumni Office for more information.

YOUNG ALUMNI GET INVOLVED

Given that almost one-third of Stonehill's 16,000 alumni graduated in the past decade, the Alumni Council formed the Young Alumni Committee last January.

This new group of alumni volunteers has focused its energy on Stonehill's most recent graduates. Under the leadership of Council member Heather (Crowley) Fiedler '92, the Committee has quickly gotten off the ground and begun its mission of keeping younger alumni connected to the College. Committee members have focused on three areas: Social Programs, Community Service and Career/Educational Seminars, with each member serving on one of these subcommittees.

Keeping young alumni involved in the College can often be difficult, as many recent graduates have a tendency to slip away from their alma mater, focusing instead on the many new responsibilities related to life after college. The Young Alumni Committee, however, has thus far proved up to the challenge, as it has already become the largest subcommittee of the Alumni Council with almost 50 members.

To gauge the interests of the College's recent graduates, volunteers designed a survey and distributed it to members of the classes of 1989-1998. The committee will now use the responses compiled from over 900 completed surveys to sponsor programs for their peers.

The committee is lead by an Executive Team. Members include Committee Chair Todd Broderick '98, Vice Chair Paul McManus '92, Publicity Representative Wendy (Magner) Adams '97, Technology Coordinator J.J. Donovan '92 and three individual Team Chairs: Bob Taylor '91 (Career/Educational Seminars), Stephanie Maher '96 (Social Programs) and Maureen (Clarke) Taylor '89 (Community Service).

The event was a huge success,” said Committee Chair Bill McAndrew ’70. “The entire volunteer committee put a great deal of time and effort into making this our best auction yet.”

In addition to being a very enjoyable evening, the auction benefits the Alumni Council Scholarship Fund, which offers aid to rising Stonehill seniors each year. In its six-year history, the auction has raised over $210,000. In the past year, close to $35,000 was awarded to members of the Class of 2000 by the Scholarship Committee.

Director of Alumni Affairs Anne Pollick '88 adds that “these successful auctions would not be possible without the generosity of many, from the committee members to the donors to those who attend the auction and purchase the items.”

Alumni Auction '99

Nov. 6 was a night of records for Stonehill's Auction Committee, as the 6th annual alumni benefit auction proved an overwhelming success. Aptly themed “The Spirit of Giving,” the event drew over 130 guests and raised just over $50,000 for the Alumni Council Scholarship Fund!

Guests first enjoyed a reception and silent auction featuring over 200 items (including tickets to The Lion King, gift certificates, golf outings, sports tickets, gift baskets, jewelry and antiques) followed by a surf and turf dinner. The evening concluded with a live auction which featured a table for five at the Holiday POPS, a tour of Boston's Big Dig, vacation getaways and autographed sports memorabilia.

“Everyone's ideas are heard and there is plenty of opportunity for alumni to help. The more members we have, the more we will be able to accomplish,” added M. Taylor.

Three events have been planned to date, including a Social in Boston held earlier this month, an upcoming Gift Wrap Party at Stonehill on Dec. 3 and a Graduate School Seminar (date TBD). The committee anticipates hosting 2-3 events each quarter which will be widely publicized.

“We are 100% committed to the success of this committee. Alumni from these classes make up a significant portion of the alumni body and the establishment of this group and completion of its projects will give the interest group added priority in the office,” offered Associate Director of Alumni Affairs Peter LaBreck ’96.

As with all Alumni Council committees, membership is open to all alumni. Current members encourage their classmates to take advantage of this new opportunity to get involved. Alumni may join the committee, or even just one of the individual teams. While there are many ways alumni can volunteer their time at Stonehill, this is the perfect opportunity for recent graduates to build ties with the College and former classmates.

To join the Young Alumni Committee, please contact the Office of Alumni Affairs at (508) 565-1343 or email us at alumni@stonehill.edu.

"The committee has strong leadership and a very dedicated membership," stated Broderick. "The initial survey results will point us in the right direction. We are very optimistic about the support and interest from the young alums.”

The Young Alumni President’s Council was created in 1999 specifically for Stonehill’s young alumni leaders. The Council recognizes young alumni who are committed to the Stonehill tradition. While exclusive, membership in the Council is not beyond reach. We have created an escalated giving structure (see chart below) that allows young alumni to give based upon their years in the professional world.

The Young Alumni President’s Council invites all alumni within ten years of their graduation to join. Members to the Council, known as Presidential Associates, enjoy the same membership benefits as President’s Council members. Among others, these benefits include exciting networking opportunities with distinguished members of the Stonehill alumni community.

As a leader of your class, please consider becoming a Presidential Associate. Tell your classmates and fellow alumni that you believe in the Stonehill experience.

If you have any questions regarding the Council, please contact Joseph Pannozzo ‘97, Assistant Director of Development, at (508) 565-1344 or email at jpannozzo@stonehill.edu.

FALL 1999 27
Imagine your doctor telling you that you have a debilitating disease which can only be controlled with medication. The drug costs $50,000 per year, however. Your insurance company is not convinced that you need it and denies you access to the drug. Your world shatters.

There are people who can help. Tammy Zizzo ’83 is one of them. Zizzo is a senior vice president of operations at HealthBridge Reimbursement and Product Support, Inc. in Braintree. She and her colleagues assist consumers with insurance dilemmas and appeals, especially related to high-priced drugs.

According to Zizzo, such denials are common in our world of managed care where the health care industry is under great pressure to keep costs in line. Pharmaceutical companies hire HealthBridge as a service to the physicians who prescribe their drugs and their patients who need the medication.

"The last thing a pharmaceutical company wants is a drug that gets too many insurance denials. Physicians will stop prescribing it and patients lose access to a drug that could really improve their lives," said Zizzo.

Three of the HealthBridge professional staff are 1997 Stonehill graduates: Amy Cerasuolo, David Kerrigan and Erin Sheehan. Sheehan, senior reimbursement advocate, grew up in the health care business working for her father at two home health care companies that he owned and managed.

"That is when I first opened my eyes as to how a patient feels," said Sheehan. "I like listening to patients and by listening I learn strategies on how to best help them."

Zizzo and the HealthBridge team work with billion dollar pharmaceutical and medical device clients who market drugs and devices internationally. They work with thousands of physicians nationwide and nearly 20,000 patients per year.

FALL 1999 29
The Stonehill College Outstanding Alumnus Award

Each year, Stonehill bestows the Outstanding Alumnus Award to a graduate who has achieved particularly distinguished professional success that, in turn, has brought honor to the College. Now, for the first time, the Alumni Council Awards Committee is asking for your help in the award process. As Stonehill alumni, you now have the opportunity to submit nominations for the 2000 Outstanding Alumnus Award. The deadline is March 15, 2000, and all nominations will be kept on file in the Office of Alumni Affairs. Nominations can be submitted using the attached form, or you may go to the Alumni web page (www.stonehill.edu/alumni) and complete the nomination on-line. We hope that many of you will take advantage of this opportunity to help designate the 2000 OAA recipient. If you have any questions, please contact the Office of Alumni Affairs at (508) 565-1343.

David Erwin '00, Sarah Ballantyne '01 (front row), Jennifer Creighton '00, and Stephanie Duggan '00 (back row) enjoy talking with alumni and raising funds for the College, but we also need alumni volunteers to call classmates during the Spring Phonathon. If you are available to make calls from campus Feb. 16, 17, 22, 23 or March 1-2, 2000, please call Director of the Annual Fund Lauren McLellan at (508) 565-1344.

Thanks to all alumni and students who participated in the Fall Phonathon (on both ends of the telephone). Our Phonathon goal for 1999-2000 is to raise $169,000 in pledges from more than 2,800 alumni. We are well on our way, but the Spring Phonathon will be the true test of our ability to succeed.

Please volunteer to call.
If you cannot, then please give generously when you hear from a phonathon caller.

DAVE, SARAH, JEN, AND STEPHANIE THANK YOU!
Stonehill put an end to Franklin Pierce's domination of New England Division II women's soccer teams with a 2-1 victory over the Ravens in September, ending Franklin Pierce's string of 106 consecutive victories against New England schools that dated back to 1991, as well as their 56-game overall regular season winning streak. Senior forward Lindsay Pepler (#15 in the photo) scored the game-winning goal, making her Stonehill's career points leader in the process. That victory lifted Stonehill to a fourth place national ranking, its highest ever. The team concluded its best season ever with an overall record of 17-4.
