ALUMNI MAGAZINE

Dear Alumni and Friends:

It is rare to have the opportunity to bid a personal farewell to such a large number of constituents as the alumni, parents, students and friends of Stonehill College. I am grateful to have the chance to wish you all well as I leave my position at the College after the publication of this issue of the Stonehill Alumni Magazine. My husband and I welcomed our new baby daughter, Katherine, into our lives in April and I have decided to stay at home to care for her full-time.

It has been my great pleasure to serve Stonehill for these past eleven years. I would like to thank all those individuals who have supported the alumni magazine over the years by sending in class note information, writing articles, being interviewed, and, of course, reading the publication. I hope that you will continue to be involved with the alumni magazine when it is "under new management" in the fall.

In working on my final issue of the magazine, I am fortunate to have had the opportunity to write about a Stonehill legend – Paula Sullivan. Paula's outstanding coaching career speaks for itself and now she is at the helm of Stonehill athletics as the new Director of Athletics. Other highlights of this issue include a re-cap of both Commencement and Reunion Weekend 1996; a retrospective of the Stonehill Alumni Magazine covers over the last eleven years; a look at just some of the recent newsclips that have showcased Stonehill faculty and administrators; and an update on Securing the Vision, The Campaign for Stonehill's Future in the Stonehill College Briefing.

I hope that you enjoy reading this issue of the Stonehill Alumni Magazine. While I will no longer be communicating with you through this publication, I plan to return to Stonehill regularly to see my colleagues and enjoy walking on the beautiful College grounds with Katherine. Maybe I will run into you on campus. I hope so.

Sincerely,

Karen DePasquale O'Malley

Paula Sullivan

A Stonehill Legend

by Karen DePasquale O'Malley

The bad news was that Paula Sullivan, women's basketball coach at Stonehill for twenty-five years and considered one of the best women's basketball coaches in the country, had retired after an outstanding career. The good news, however, is that she has now taken over the helm of the Stonehill athletics program as the College's new Director of Athletics. Stonehill President Father Bartley MacPháidín, C.S.C. announced her appointment in April. Upon retiring in March, Paula turned over the coaching duties to her nine-year assistant coach Kelly Hart.

A Stonehill veteran, Paula started the women's basketball program when she was hired for the job in 1971. At that time, Stonehill was forming its program and needed someone to coach the team. Her talent, commitment and dedication have resulted in the Stonehill women's basketball team developing into one of the best Division II programs in America. Twenty-five years later, as she prepares to take to the stands to watch the games rather than coaching from the bench during those same games, Paula leaves behind an incredible legacy. During her career, she has been named Northeast-10 Coach of the Year six times, her teams have won more than 20 games thirteen times, have made the NCAA Division II Tournament ten times and twice qualified for the Division II Elite Eight. Paula's final record at Stonehill stands at 478-158.

"I never thought this day would come, but it has," said Paula at an emotional gathering this spring with friends and former players in the Merkert Gymnasium lobby. "It is high time for me to step aside and let someone else take care of the women's basketball program. For twenty-five years, this has obviously been a major part of my life."

Since last fall until her appointment this spring, Paula served as interim athletic director following the death of Athletic Director and men's basketball coach Raymond P. Pepin. Paula says that she made the decision to retire from coaching long before that because twenty-five years of coaching was simply enough. "It was something I had been thinking about long before Ray's death. I told Ray last September that I felt this past season would be my last. I knew about this during the season but kept my decision quiet. I felt it would be a distraction to my team if I didn't. I thought that it would take away from the season," said Paula.

Her concern for her players is typical of Paula's style. So is her too humble acknowledgment of her notable career. Players, competitors and members of the media who have interviewed her following painful losses as well as exciting wins say she is always diplomatic and approachable. At the same time, Paula's drive and competitiveness are always clearly displayed at practices and during games. A "dignified ferocity" is how one journalist described this Sullivan attribute. Modestly, Paula says that without the outstanding players that have come to Stonehill she would not have achieved such a high level of success. What she neglects to mention is that it was her reputation that helped to attract athletes to Stonehill.

Most sports fans know of the long-standing rivalry between Stonehill and Bentley College, always in basketball and more recently in football as well. Paula and fellow coach Barbara Stevens, whose Bentley team has given Paula some of her career's biggest challenges, are serious competitors on the court. Off the court, they are friends who share a mutual respect for each other's achievements and contributions to the sport. Recently, Barbara spoke about Paula's successful career and commitment to Stonehill athletics.

"Paula measures her success not only in wins and losses but also in how positively she impacts the lives of her players. As a coach you have a responsibility to your players. She is always concerned that her players are successful and happy on and off the court. Paula is an excellent coach and strategist who can handle herself in any situation. As a fellow coach, if you love to compete, this is the exact situation that you want. Our students love to play Stonehill because of the rivalry. But more importantly, they know it will be competitive," says Barbara.

"Paula's place is reserved in local sporting history because she is one of the most talented and successful coaches in women's basketball. In addition, she has a tremendous amount of respect from her fellow coaches in and around the league, as well as across the country. She never demeans an opponent after a Stonehill win and always gives credit where it is due. When you coach against Paula, you are coaching against one of the legends whose team is always well-prepared."

Paula says that her time as interim athletic director has served as sound preparation for the current permanent appointment. "I never entertained the thought of becoming athletic director," she says. "I always assumed that Ray would be here for a long time and I was looking forward to working with him. In the interim position, I had the opportunity to examine the role and determine my desire and readiness for the job. I used to be responsible for one team; now I am working with eighteen teams. I look forward to the challenges that I have ahead of me — improving facilities, boosting pride in athletics and advancing the College's overall athletics program."

Sullivan's record of winning is reason enough for her to be considered qualified as an athletic leader says former player Michelle Doonan '95. Arguably the best player to ever wear the Stonehill uniform, Michelle, a two-time All American and two-time Division II Most Valuable Player award recipient, credits Paula with motivating her to excel. "Paula could motivate anyone. She always encouraged me to do my best and to work hard. I feel that due to her strong influence I am now a more confident and disciplined individual. Paula helps players realize their fullest potential on and off the court. She helps students strive to be more than they thought possible." Currently, Michelle is pursuing her business career at Boston Global Advisors, Inc., a Boston investment firm which provides securities lending services to institutional investors worldwide.

Paula is often asked why she has remained at Stonehill for so long, when given her record, she could have moved to coach at a Division I level school. Her response should make every member of the College community happy. "Because I love Stonehill. The students are great and the school's reputation sells itself. Players on previous teams are very loyal, always willing to come to games and fundraisers. Simply put, Stonehill's a special place."

Irish language preserves link to an ancient culture

In a society of fear and suspicion, what outlet is there for kindness?

By Robert A. Rosenthal

At our recent college commencement ceremony, one of the speakers urged our students to "be kind to others" as one way to achieve a more fulfilling life. That simple advice brought a smile to my face accompanied by two competing thoughts.

First, I agreed wholeheartedly with the speaker — for being kind to others has always seemed one of the easiest and most effective ways to feel good about oneself. While altruistic in disguise, form of selfishness in disguise. And second, it is also an act that is increasingly difficult to perform in the mundane routine of day-to-day living.

Increasing levels of fear and suspicion are being committed to the process of admissions. This information is factored in to determine the minimum financial-aid offer that might be just enough to induce that student to their first college lesson: can only be detrimental. Stonehill College's three-year-old collection is rapidly becoming a vital tool for American scholars studying Ireland. The archives were conceived by the two professors out of an altruism for academic pursuits, however, but more from their own frustration. In 1990, the pair were researching a book on the economy of Ireland and found themselves scouring the bookshelves of Harvard's Widener Library, thinking they had missed a shelf somewhere. "Instead of the row upon row of material we expected, we found relatively few of the volumes we sought," said Finnegan, a native of Boston's Dorchester neighborhood. "It surprised us. We thought, 'If Harvard doesn't have it, who does?'"

Harvest for the Heart

Publisher: Pauline Books & Media, 1996

Harvest for the Heart offers reflections for nourishing hearts and minds. Hunger for God can only be fully satisfied when we behold the beatific vision when God calls us home. Along the road of life, however, our hunger is daily satisfied by the experiences that come our way. Our hunger is not for food to nourish our bodies, but for that which satisfies our heart and soul. These reflections are independent experiences of faith which together form a harvest for the heart, which daily yearns for God.

"Securing the Vision"

Stonehill's Future

Volume 5, Number 1, Summer 1996

*James "Lou" Gorman '53
General Chair
Stonehill College Alumni Fund*

Dear Alumni and Friends:

It is with a great sense of pride and eagerness that I have accepted the position of General Chair for the Stonehill College Alumni Fund.

► Pride because of my deep-rooted belief in and admiration for the College, its mission, and what it has meant to me and to so many of my fellow graduates.

► Eagerness because we are approaching the final phase of Securing the Vision: The Campaign for Stonehill's Future — a milestone which will only be achieved with your help.

The Alumni Fund has long been the cornerstone for all of the College's fundraising endeavors. When the College approaches corporations and foundations for philanthropic assistance, they look first to the level of support given by those who know us best — our alumni. Stonehill is fortunate to have many loyal and concerned graduates who have always risen to the challenges that might face them.

COLLEGE

Briefing

The Alden Challenge — A Success!

That's what the Alden Challenge was! In September 1995, the College was issued a challenge by the George I. Alden Trust. The challenge was that the College must raise $150,000 in new or increased gifts from alumni in the Classes of 1985 to 1995 and from parents of current students by June 30, 1996. Once the $150,000 goal was met, the Alden Trust would give Stonehill $50,000 to be used towards library automation.

Nearly 1,500 alumni and parents combined to give Stonehill $155,259 in new or increased gifts. The Alden Trust, upon notification of our success, wrote to Father MacPháidín:

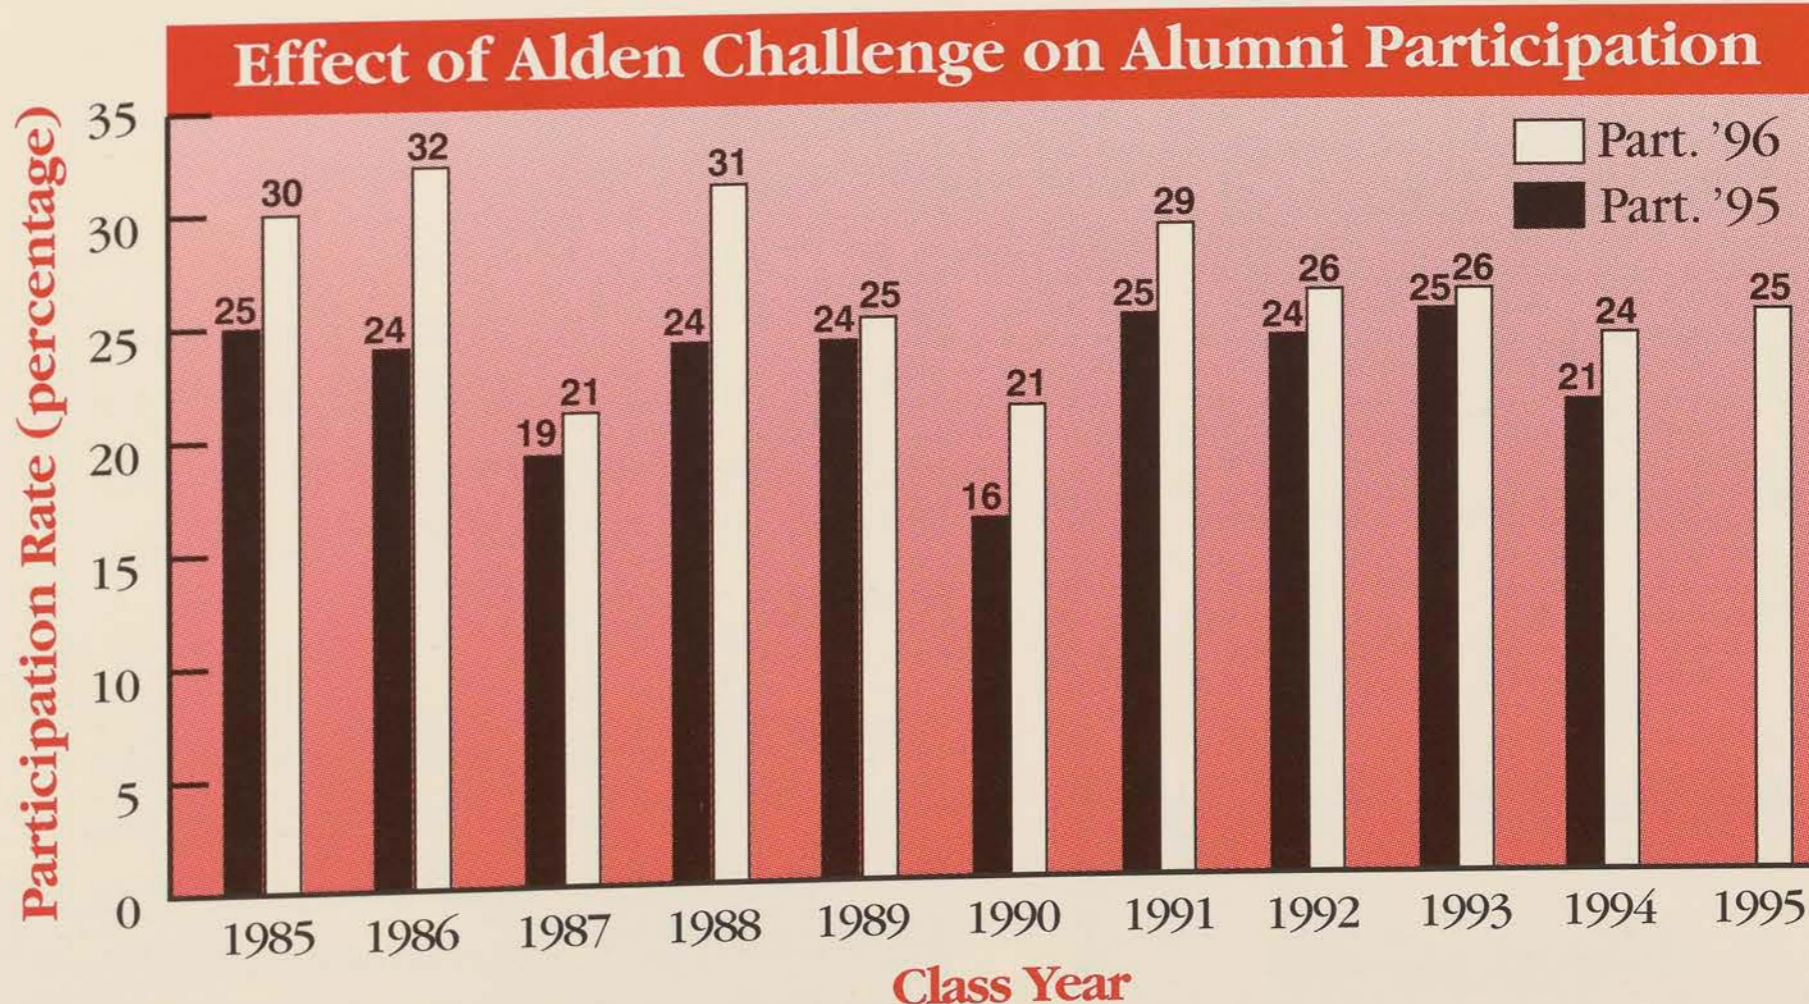

We congratulate you on successfully meeting the deadline. We are glad to enclose our check to Stonehill College in the amount of $50,000 for matching our 3:1 challenge and are happy that the Trust could be of assistance to you.

The College is grateful for the support of the George I. Alden Trust.

The new and increased support received from '85 to '95 alumni and from the parents of current students was extraordinary. Of the nearly 1,500 donors participating in the Challenge, more than 1,000 had not been donors in the previous year. These "new" donors certainly played a major role in the Annual Fund's tremendous growth in participation. Additionally, 332 alumni and 105 parents increased their gift over what they had given in the previous year.

Stonehill greatly appreciates the alumni and parent support given to the College as part of the Alden Challenge — a challenge that we succeeded in meeting together!

Alumni Fund Reaches New Heights

This year was very good for the Stonehill College Annual Fund. Anchored by the Alumni and Parents’ Funds, new records were set for total alumni and parent donors as well as the total amount of alumni and parent giving.

Alumni Fund Chair Brian McKenna ’80 reported that Stonehill received $560,125 from 4,364 donors for a participation rate of 33%. Total dollars increased by 5%, donors were up by 12% and the young alumni classes (1985-1995) increased their participation by 26%.

Not to be outdone, the Parents’ Fund under the direction of Tom and Sheila Connors, parents of Alicia ’98, exceeded the $100,000 mark for the first time ever, topping out with $104,093 from 733 donors. This represents a 12% increase in dollars and a 26% increase in parent donors.

*“Working on the Capital Campaign
has given me fresh
insight on Stonehill’s vitality and great potential. The way
in which alumni,
parents, friends and
benefactors have rallied to our cause
has been spectacular.
Indeed, this is an exciting time in Stonehill’s young history. To everyone who is contributing to that excitement,
I extend my deepest thanks.”*

Campaign Goals Update

I look forward to working with members of our alumni body as Stonehill advances into the 21st century.

With foresight and diligence, we must persevere if we are to raise the final $3 million needed in "Securing the Vision" to satisfy all of the components of the Capital Campaign. In truth, I firmly believe that our alumni will once again "hit one out of the park" for Stonehill.

Sincerely,

In Memoriam

On Holy Saturday, April 6, 1996, Peter Paolella, Associate Professor of Biology, died after a long illness.

Peter came to Stonehill in 1970, just after completing his doctorate in microbiology at the University of Rhode Island. The first professor to teach immunology and molecular genetics at Stonehill, he pioneered these courses with style and humor, sharing with his colleagues the challenges of teaching about the vanishingly small to students more attuned to organ and system level biology.

Peter's range of interests and knowledge was astonishing. He had majored in economics as an undergraduate, and he remained deeply interested in national and international political, economic and social phenomena. A voracious reader, he began to write books about ten years ago. His textbook on molecular genetics is presently in the last stages of editing by Wm. C. Brown Publishers. "For fun," he wrote several spy thrillers. He also enjoyed music (from opera to jazz), painting, sailing, scuba diving, camping and cooking.

After his marriage to Cecile Hebert '75, Peter moved to Johnston, RI where they and their three children, Christopher, Andreana and Eileen, attended St. Rocco's Church. Peter began to help out with parish fund-raising activities when the children were very young and quickly became both the Thursday night bingo treasurer and the chief cook for the parish feasts. His colleagues on campus loved to hear him talk about food preparation after the parish feasts and family dinners; and many cherish the recipes he gave them over the years.

A scholarship fund has been established to honor the memory of Peter. Donations may be made to the Peter Paolella Scholarship Fund, c/o Stonehill College, College Relations Office, 320 Washington Street, North Easton, MA 02357.

~ Stonehill College Auction '96 ~

The Alumni Council and the Auction Planning Committee are pleased to present their third annual Auction on Saturday evening, November 2 on the Stonehill College campus. This year's auction will benefit the new Library and Networked Information Center. Last year's Auction was a great success with approximately $33,000 raised for the Alumni Scholarship Fund. Be sure to order your tickets early as seats are limited.

Many exciting auction items have already been collected, including a week's stay at a spacious beachfront home on Emerald Isle, North Carolina, various golf-related items, beautiful framed artwork and photography, to name just a few.

As fellow alumni, the committee is asking for your support and would appreciate donations. Do you own a vacation property in the mountains, on the Cape, in Florida or elsewhere that you would be willing to donate for a week or a weekend? Could your business donate a service (carpentry, landscape, oil burner cleaning, gas fill-up, auto or appliance repair, snowplowing, household help, facial, manicure, dinner)? Do you have a special talent that you could share (gourmet dinner in someone's home, cake decorating, musical performance, craft item, art lessons, golf lessons)? Would you be willing to purchase an item for donation to the Auction (tickets for theatre or sporting events, books, gift certificates)?

Maybe you have a connection with a celebrity who would be willing to donate an autographed item?

The possibilities are endless! And your involvement would provide you with free advertising as well as the opportunity to assist current Stonehill students through library development.

If you are interested in helping out by donating an item or serving on the committee, please call the Alumni Office at (508) 565-1343.
